We were a smaller company than Reuters, Playboy, The Wall Street Journal, and other global publications, but we were not short of resources. We had a high level of skill and performance among our team. Our work ethic was the best, and we were always on time for our deadlines. Dear Ashutosh,

It is great to read you on usual communicative site. I am happy to read your article about the Apple Pencil and sketch pro for iPad Pro about finest tool. I am using Apple Pencil for several months and I can write so fast and edit sketches and mark ups, draw on paper, do web pages mockups in about several minutes. I am using Retouche word processor since 2008 but I didn't have such a fine tool like Apple Pencil. Ever since I learned first hand from Jean Claude Rénas, a famous cartoonist, that apps for iPad and Mac are the thing of the future, I've been a serious Mac and iPad user. The only issue I find out is a lack of accessories such as table, tray and stand for Apple Pencil. I got used to hold Apple Pencil perfectly in my hand but after some months I forgot how to hold it and I feel tired after carrying it every day. So my suggestion is for you to consider my needs as a user when thinking about using table, stand and tray.

Best Regards,

What It Does: The Fill tool, formerly the Paint Bucket tool, fills any solid area with the color of your choice. It's great for solid backgrounds or coloring large areas. It can also be used to apply patterns to your images. The Gradient tool within the Fill tool lets you create a nice, faded background effect of the color of your choice. Why use it: The Gradient tool lets you apply tones of color in a gradual fashion. This is useful for creating a smooth transition between two colors. Or you can use it to create a gradient fade from one color to another. The Gradient tool works in the same way whether you're creating a gradient within an image or applying one to a layer. Now, the first thing you need to know is that Lightroom and Photoshop are two different products, and for a fresh installation, they're a lot different. Photoshop is more of a "photographic toolkit," whereas Lightroom is more of a "photographic workflow." The Photoshop interface is essential to many web designers because it allows web designers to work on a screen that mimics the look of an "old school" printer. In addition to this functionality, Photoshop also has layer-based features that allow designers to manipulate and guide the design process. Photoshop also allows designers to use color palettes as well as a variety of shapes and types of effects, such as blur, reflection, and drop shadows. Photoshop CC is the best beginner-level program, but you can't go wrong with Photoshop LT (Lightroom Classic in the free version), which also has a variety of advanced features that are perfect for more advanced users.

What did I use to shoot this?

I had a high resolution 20M 5D (CF) that was about $6K. I took it out of the box with the Zuiko 10-18mm lens that came with it. I took a few pre-light setup photos--this was before the shot of the Day. Then we selected the flower, brought it to the location, and set up tripod, lens, and monitor. I made sure I was on Aperture and Av, set white balance, ISO, set Shutter speed, and pressed the button. 90% of the time it worked. The basics of the lighting set up

The purpose of the lighting was to match the environments in the wedding portraits. In most instances, flowers are outdoors and the only lighting is ambient. The higher the ambient light the more the shadow on the flower. So, I lit mostly in the ambient light--it's what is usually there.
